May to November 1949

1. The airfield was located on the southern edge of SVERDLOVSK (60°38'E/56°48'N), on the western border of the road to NISHINE-ISETSKI.
2. There was a small building on the road by the side of the main field entrance. Some hangars were on the edge of the field.
3. Some aircraft of various types, including Ju-52s and Douglas planes, were stationed at the field.

25X1A

August 1947 to March 1949

4. The SVERDLOVSK civil airport was located on the southern edge of the town west of the road to NISHINE-ISETSKI, north of the railroad line to CHELYABINSK, and northwest of UKTUS (see annex).
5. The medium size field was used almost exclusively by small aircraft.

Comment: 25X1A

The field is an old installation which is entered on the town map. It is now only used as an auxiliary field, a fact which is also indicated by the remark that it is chiefly used by small aircraft.
